PLOT

Finca San Prudencio. A thin iron-clay topsoil layer over sandstone o East orientation, however the usual single orientation doesn't apply due to the ancient "marco real" plantation frame (square sides). East elevated plot with a slight slant caused by a sandstone bed. Protected from the north by a stone hill and fig trees. East orrientation, however the usual single orientation doesn't apply due to the ancient "marco real" plantation frame (square sides)

HARVEST

Hand-picked in 12 kg cases.

WINEMAKING

Destemmed, both alcoholic and malolactic fermentations take place in 1,000 l. stainless steel vats. The wine is then aged in used and new French-oak barrels for only 9 months in order to preserve the delicate notes and exceptional character.

TASTING NOTES

Intense and vibrant red fruit -raspberries, red currant combined with a bright zesty acidity. To finish it off, the spectacular floral nose floats above it all.
